Mothers, expectant mothers, grandmothers, stepmothers and fathers can:

- Write a Mini-Memoir of life as a parent
- Experience self-discovery and growth
- Create “written snapshots” of their growing children
- Work toward publishable essays, articles, books, etc.
- Connect with other parents who like to write

In-class writing helps reach more deeply into the mixture of emotions that defines parenthood.

- Opportunity to read aloud without criticism for feedback and encouragement
- Resources for pursuing publication

Mary Harmon’s articles and parenting columns have appeared in publications including Working Mother, McCall’s, Ladies’ Home Journal, The New York Times Sunday supplements and Big Apple Parent Paper. She has been a guest on radio talk shows throughout the U.S. Mary and her husband live in Cobble Hill. She is the mother of a 20-year-old son.
